India's Tax Structure Hinders Formal Job Market Growth

Photo: Financial Express, Read To Lead (via NewsData)

India's aspiration to develop a $5 trillion formal economy faces a significant challenge from its current tax framework. Specifically, an 18% tax levied on the act of formally employing individuals is identified as a major impediment. This tax, described as a 'formalisation tax,' is seen as counterproductive to the goal of expanding the formal sector. The implication is that such a levy discourages businesses from formalizing their hiring practices, there...
